We who are silent

in our affection

sometimes see deeper and care more . . .

I know such feelings

are futile,

but they are mine

and yours . .

SCHOOL: any place or means of learning a discipline . . . any place for instruction in any branch of knowledge . . . a place for lectures . . .

A school is more than a place; or a staff or student body;

it is a process of bringing to birth, of awakening.

We see in different stages of a person's life how certain abilities are ascendant, others dormant. A time for tilling, a time for harvesting, a time for laying fallow.

Why is a child sent to school at all?

Why is he taught one subject now and another later . . .

I don't want to be told that it's legally required or that an expert recommends . . .

I want to know what needs are being served by doing things one way, rather than another . . .

A teacher should aid in this education personally — not by textbook!
(The children should make their own.)

EDUCATION: the act or process of imparting or acquiring general knowledge, developing the powers of reasoning and judgement, and generally preparing oneself or others intellectually for mature life.

Education is the process of waking up to life;
eating life in its layers like a magic cake.

The task of the teacher is to remove the obstacles that exist between a child and his free development. Freedom is presence, not absence.

A class with different levels of aptitude, and many kinds of response,

may bloom like a garden, full of color and texture.

To be open to what we see and hear, in our reading and writing, our receiving and giving, this is the aim of our pedagogy . . . to foster a sense of life at its profoundest depth . . .

PEDAGOGY: the function or work of a teacher teaching . . . the art or science of teaching instructional methods.

. . . pick up the cord out of the invisible, the visible out of the dark, the light out of the heavy, the light: the seed, the grape the sand, the vine . . .

in the heavy, hovers the youth's face, hovering in this face, the child.
out of the deep sea, the dark horizon, the sun dahlia sun-face, a falling ball, in time, recovers its fire to us; the falling man, through time, and loss . . .

The mess
in social justice,
the mess
in medicine,
the mess
in agriculture,
the mess
in food and drugs,
the mess
in education

are symptoms of the mess in the human soul.

Who do we think we are? Meat with hairs growing out of it . . . ?
What is man? What is man's work, what is man's pleasure?

What do we want to be when we grow up?

Is sexual satisfaction our goal in life?
or financial security?
or emotional security?
or freedom from concern for others?

I mean,
what are we educating ourselves for?

— after M.C. Richards

hey, why don't you smile can't you see it's a beautiful day?
forget about your worries
forget about your cares
just sit you down and smile
and enjoy life for awhile.
see how it sparkles — see how it grows —
touch it
watch it
feel it warm to you.

hey, why don't you smile
can't you see it's gonna rain?
forget about your worries
forget about your cares
just sit you down and smile and let the friendly rain wet you for awhile.
see how it clings —
see how it stretches —
touch it
watch it
feel it warm to you.

hey, why don't you smile
can't you see you're going blind?
forget about your worries
forget about your cares
just sit you down and smile
and enjoy life for awhile.
see how it glistens — see how it shines —
touch it
watch it
feel it warm to you.

'cause if you don't it'll go away
and find someone else who ll let it!

The mass and majesty

they lost their pride

One night in late October, when I was far from sober, returning with my load with manly pride,
My feet began to stutter, so I lay down in the gutter,
And a pig came near and lay down by my side,
A lady passing by was heard to say:
"You can tell a man who boozes, by the company he chooses,"
And the pig got up and slowly walked away.

Our is essentially a tragic age, so we refuse to take it tragically. The cataclysm has happened, we are among the ruins, we start to build up new little habitats, to have new little hopes. It is rather hard work; there is no smooth road into the future; but we go round, or scramble over the obstacles. We've got to live, no matter how many skies have fallen.

Sometimes I feel like a child im sorry that I just cant be something more than what I appear to be.
Don't you think if you smiled once more
I could try to learn how
I am lonely
and I cry alot-
If I mess it up and do it wrong
Could you try and understand that sometimes
I just cant make it right.
Did you ever
wonder how it could be,
don't you care?
Could you show me please,
'cause it im wrong
let me know
maybe im a fool
and maybe I try too hard but I wish that you could see me now.

'Remove me!' Scrooge exclaimed,
'I cannot bear it!'
